

SINGLE CRASH REPORTED IN HEAVY TRAFFIC

"The heaviest traffic since before the war."

That was the way one member of the local substation of the state police summed up the traffic in the Gettysburg area Sunday afternoon. As he spoke cars were traveling almost bumper to bumper in fashion similar to the Sunday afternoons of the years preceding gas rationing, tire rationing and few new cars.

There was only one accident reported by the state police to spoil an otherwise perfect day for motoring, but the officers were busy making arrests of those who violated the rules of the highway and thus endangered the lives of other motorists.

Gettysburg's National park reported the biggest week-end of business since before the war.

Record on 'Field'

One hundred and forty-three guided tours were taken over the field Sunday, the largest number since before the war and 58 more than were made on Memorial Day this year. An estimated total of 4,000 visitors visited the battlefield Sunday and an additional 2,500 visited Saturday, when 84 guided tours were made. National Cemetery Superintendent Alvin Baker said the last week was the biggest for number of tourists in many years.

Gettysburg's square was jammed with cars most of Sunday afternoon with long lines of traffic pouring into it from all four main streets. Lines of cars two and three blocks long were stopped whenever hitches occurred in the orderly progression of vehicles about the square.

Three-Car Collision

A 65-year-old Altoona man, Herman D. Snitzer, was arrested for making a bad pass following the only accident reported today by the state police here. The collision occurred at 4:55 o'clock Sunday afternoon one-half mile west of McKnightstown. State police said that Snitzer was attempting to pass a long line of cars and collided with a car driven by George E. Neff, 21, York, coming in the opposite direction.

When Snitzer hit Neff, Snitzer's vehicle was pushed into a car of Arthur G. Lockhart, 68, Port Fairfield, Maine, beside which police say the Snitzer vehicle was traveling at the moment. Total damage was estimated at $255.

Mrs. Neff suffered a bruised knee which was treated by a local doctor. The bad pass charge against Snitzer will be filed before Justice of the Peace William Dentler, Cashtown.

Bad Passes And Speeding

Bad passes and speeding were the causes of most of the arrests made by the state police over the week-end, according to police reports.

Rowell A. Maxwell, Camp Hill, was charged with driving at 60 miles per hour before Justice Charles R. Angell, Dillsburg R. D.

George C. Hertweck, Dillsburg, was arrested on an improper pass charge brought before Justice George Brandt, Dillsburg.

Bernard Brown, Vandergrift, was charged with speeding at 60 miles (Please Turn to Page 2)

COUPLE MARKS ANNIVERSARY

The Rev. and Mrs. Will P. Bare, 141 Seminary avenue, had a double celebration this past week-end.

On Sunday they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary and on Friday their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Luther A. Gotwald, and their children arrived from India, their first trip home in six and a half years.

Dr. and Mrs. Gotwald and their daughters, Susan and Ethel Ruth, were nearly three months enroute from India to the U. S. They left their home in India on March 25. On Easter Sunday, April 21, as their ship was entering the Suez canal in Egypt, it was rammed broadside and the bow of the vessel sank immediately. However the stern remained afloat and the passengers and baggage were taken safely ashore.

The Gotwalds spent five weeks in Egypt while making arrangements to secure transportation on another ship. They finally secured passage on the S. S. "Vulcania," a former Italian line ship, which was chartered by the U. S. Government to bring home GI brides. On board with the Gotwalds and other civilians were 380 GI brides, chiefly from Italy, who came to America to rejoin their husbands and become American citizens.

At the 50th wedding anniversary celebration Sunday in addition to Dr. and Mrs. Gotwald and Susan and Ethel Ruth other guests were Miss Mary E. Gotwald, New York city, and Frederick and William Gotwald.

More than 100 delegates from churches in Adams, York, Franklin and Cumberland counties attended the afternoon and evening sessions.

Miss Nona Diehl, executive secretary of the missionary societies of the United Lutheran church, who was first president of the group which met Saturday at St. James, spoke on the need for religion to secure peace for the world and on the activities of missionaries. "We must secure peace within ourselves before we can have peace in the church and in the world," she told the group. "Peace," she said, "comes only from union with God in all our actions."

The afternoon session opened with devotions on the theme "Peace" (Please Turn to Page 5)

THREE HURT IN AUTO MISHAPS

Three were injured in motor accidents in the Carlisle area over the week-end. Two of the injured were admitted to Carlisle hospital where the condition of Lynn McKinney, 22, of Gardners R. D. 2, who received lacerations of the throat, is said to be serious.

McKinney was an occupant of an automobile operated by Elvin Weidner, also of Gardners R. D. 2. The car was sideswiped by another driven by John R. Morrison, 20, of Newville. The accident occurred on the York road, four miles east of Carlisle. State police from the Carlisle sub-station announced they will prefer charge of failure to yield half of the highway against Morrison.

Two drivers were injured Saturday night in a collision of automobiles on the Gettysburg Pike at the south side of Mt. Holly Springs. One driver faces a reckless driving charge, state police of the Carlisle substation reported.

The accident happened when Harry W. Smith, Gardners R. D. 1, drove too close to the edge of the pike and his car sideswiped a guard post. The machine then cut diagonally to the left and crashed head on into the car of Willard Harkness, of Lewistown, who was driving toward Mt. Holly. Smith's car was demolished and police estimated damage to the Harkness car at $275. Harkness suffered concussion and a laceration of the forehead and was held over night at Carlisle hospital. Smith suffered bruises of the forehead and lacerations of the body, but did not require medical treatment, police said.

The reckless driving charge will be preferred against Smith before Justice of the Peace Harry E. Fishel, Boiling Springs, police said.

EDUCATORS GATHER HERE

Fifty educators from York, Adams and Franklin counties and from Carroll county, Maryland, registered this morning at the SCA building, college campus, for the second annual secondary school conference being held here today, Tuesday and Wednesday. An additional group was expected to arrive this afternoon.

The discussions this morning were based on legislation and techniques affecting education, on-the-job and apprenticeship training of veterans. Henry J. Miller, president of the York county schoolmen's club, presided with Harvey E. Swartz, York county superintendent of schools as discussion leader.

Among those taking part in the discussions were Walter Hess of the National Association of Secondary School Principals,

Colonel Rice

that cannot be shirked or dodged. "The atom bomb did more than knock Japan out of the war," Rice continued. "It emphasized the fact that the post-war world is a new world. Whether it will be a better world is up to us. But it means that the old formulas, the old theories, have to be reviewed and reconsidered in the light of the changes that the war has brought."

"The Democratic party believes in progress. . . It is the party of today and the party of tomorrow."

Declaring that the state budget today is the "highest in history," Rice asserted that Governor Martin is spending far more for the house-keeping services of government and far less for relief and other direct benefits than any governor in the history of the state, and at the same time has overcharged the taxpayers nearly $200,000,000 and proudly exhibited it as a surplus.

"National Scandal"
He charged that the state's mental hospitals are a national scandal; that the anti-pollution bill "is nothing more or less than a modification of the LaRue act passed in 1937 under Democratic auspices, and that it has not resulted "in the cleaning up of a single stream" in the commonwealth, and that "not one important step has been taken by the administration to help the veteran or housing, on jobs, or on any of the major problems facing the man just out of uniform."

Continuing, he said: "Now they're promising a bonus, perhaps, and 'if the veterans want it,' but in the same breath they refuse to call a special session of the legislature. Without such a session, any bonus will automatically be delayed for two years, and they know it."

In other points, Col. Rice said: Wants All Paved Roads
"I consider it a disgrace that in Pennsylvania, one of the greatest states in the union, we still have dirt roads. Every mile of dirt road should have been hard-surfaced long ago, and when I'm elected, I'm going to do it."

He charged that the small business man in Pennsylvania has been played for a "sucker"; that the Republican-dominated legislature has kept employers' insurance costs high, and at the same time kept their liability to a minimum by cutting down benefits to injured workers and their families, and that the legislature has sabotaged "any legislation which might place the employer and worker on more equal bargaining terms."

On education, Col. Rice said: "I believe the state should give the utmost financial assistance in encouraging the elimination of one-room schools. Teachers at present are grossly underpaid. The state should assure that teachers receive decent salaries and enjoy liberal retirement benefits."

To Explain Program
On the subject of floods, Col. Rice said: "Floods in Pennsylvania can be licked, and I propose to lick them." And on the agricultural side of the picture, the Democratic standard bearer charged that everything in the state that has been done for farmers in recent years has been done by federal agencies, and the farmer has been forced to take a back seat, because "the Republican organization felt it had the farmer's vote in its vest pocket anyway."

Col. Rice promised that during the forthcoming campaign he would outline specifically and in detail what he and the party will do for Pennsylvania. "I will cover every major field," he said, "education, state administration, social legislation, conservation, agriculture, the promotion of Pennsylvania industry, public utility regulation, home building and veterans' assistance."

"Positive Campaign"
He declared that the campaign will be carried to the opposition, but not through abuse or personal denunciation. "Our campaign will be positive," he said. "It will be constructive. It will be down to earth. When the people elect us this November, the state government will become once more what it always should be—a powerful force for good in Pennsylvania, an instrument of progress, a community agency, working for the people which will help them build an enduring prosperity and rising living standards. That is our concept of government, the liberal concept."

In his conclusion, Col. Rice challenged the Republicans to call a special session of the legislature and write their platform into law before the election.

After the acceptance speech, Mrs. Rice was introduced as "the next first lady of Pennsylvania," and the ceremonies closed with benediction by Dr. Gresh.

LLOYD MANGRUM WINS NATIONAL IN HOT FINISH

By FRITZ HOWELL
Cleveland, June 17 (AP)—They won't be calling him "Ray Mangrum's kid brother" around the golfing circuit any more—for now he's the national open champion.

In one of the most star-spangled finishes the links classic has ever witnessed, Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles, a Texas-born farm boy, snatched gold from the biggest prize yesterday over Canterbury golf club's storm-menaced layout in a double playoff with Byron Nelson of Toledo and Vic Ghezzi of Knoxville, Tennessee.

They had tied Saturday at 284, four under par, for the regulation 72 holes, and in the first playoff round yesterday morning they came in like a three-horse team with par 72's, forcing another round.

Down To Last Hole
Three strokes behind Ghezzi and two back of Nelson at the end of 12 holes of the final round, Mangrum uncorked a blazing four-hole spurge in which he took a two-stroke lead through the 16th, saw it whittled to a single stroke on the 17th green, and then hung doggedly to win between lightning flashes, and in the glare of automobile headlights, on the final green.

He finished a single stroke ahead of his two opponents, his one-over-par five on the closing hole being good enough to maintain his edge as Ghezzi failed to down a four-foot putt which would have sent him and Mangrum into a third overtime session.

Is War Veteran
Mangrum, 31, wears the Purple Heart for shrapnel wounds received in Europe. He is a mighty mite, weighing only 145 pounds, although six feet tall. A natty moustache adorns his lip.

Before 1938, when he first took up tournament golf, he was known as Ray Mangrum's kid brother, Ray being one of the better-known journeymen picking up prize checks.

In his Texas drawl—he was born and reared on a farm near Trenton, Texas—Mangrum declared that he started as a caddy, never played amateur golf, but that "I have always been a pro. I am not a professional at any club, and I'm not going to take a job like that."

U. S. WINS 1ST TENNIS ROUND
St. Louis, June 17 (AP)—The United States Davis cup team which swept through its open round match with the Philippine Islands without loss of a set was on its way to Orange, N. J., for the final zone match with Mexico June 28-30.

The Americans clinched the best three-of-five match Sunday when its doubles team of Billy Talbot of Wilmington, Del., and Gardner Mulloy of Miami, Fla., trimmed Cesar Garmona and Felicissimo Ampon, 6-1, 6-3, 6-1.

Matches Won Easily
Friday's two singles matches were won by the U. S. Talbot and Mulloy had little difficulty in yesterday's doubles because Ampon was off his game, netting the ball or hitting it out most of the time.

Walter Pate, captain of the U. S. team, said he did not expect much trouble in winning from the Mexican brother team of Amando and Rolando Vega. Should the U. S. players win they will meet New Zealand, the only team in the Pacific zone. The winner of that match opposes the European survivor for the right to challenge Australia for the Davis cup.

In front but Trenton roared back in the finale to edge the Blue Rocks, 7-6.

Harrisburg, Allentown and Hagerstown all swept twin bills. The Senators pushed York deeper into the cellar by eking out 5-4 and 1-0 decisions. Hagerstown dumped the Sunbury Yankees, 2-0 and 6-5. Allentown ran roughshod over Lancaster, winning the first game, 17-7, and taking the finale, 4-1.

BILLY HERMAN JOINS BRAVES IN DOUBLE WIN

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Billy (David Harum) Southworth, who doesn't consider a day well spent unless he comes up with a new "redskin" for his Boston Braves' wigwag, appears today to have scored a 10-strike in his latest acquisition, popular Billy Herman, one of baseball's top-flight infielders during the past decade.

Only an hour and a half after the 34-year old Herman joined the Braves yesterday, it became apparent that Southworth's final transaction before the trading deadline might prove to be his most profitable.

Arriving 30 minutes before game time following the trade which brought him from Brooklyn in exchange for Catcher Stu Hofferth, Herman drove in the Braves' initial run in the first game of Boston's double header with Cincinnati which sent the hub on its way to a twin triumph over the Reds 2-1 and 2-0.

Dodgers Whip Cubs
The double win moved the fifth place Braves to within a game and a half of the first division and seven and a half behind the league-leading Dodgers, who increased their margin over the runner-up Cards by whipping the Chicago Cubs 4 to 2.

The Cards were forced to accept a split with the New York Giants when the polo grounders came back to humble them 9-1 after the Cards had won the opener 4-1.

The Boston Red Sox dropped their first series of the season when they could do no better than divide two games with the Chicago White Sox, winning the opener 6-1. But losing the afterpiece 7-4.

After pounding out a 9-2 win over the St. Louis Browns, the New York Yankees cashed in on a three-base error by Pitcher Tex Chirley to win the nightcap 7-5 in 10 innings.

Five For Phils
Third place Detroit dropped to an even dozen games off the pace when the Washington Senators triumphed 6-3 in a game held to seven innings by rain and darkness.

The largest crowd in Philadelphia's National league history 36,910 paid, saw the Phils extend their winning streak to five straight when they beat Pittsburgh 4-3, but the Pirates came back to hand the Phils their fifth defeat in the last 17 games 10-1.

Cleveland moved into fifth place by copping both ends of its double header with the Philadelphia Athletics 2-1 in 11 innings and 3-2.

Sports Roundup
By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, June 17 (AP)—Folks who follow basketball—and there are a lot of them, even in summer—are wondering whether the new interest in the pro cage game comes from a desire to cash in on the sports boom or a search for "insurance."

The number of southern teams booked for garden double-headers next winter may indicate that some of Ned Irish's old reliables aren't so anxious to play here. . . . Educators still are timid about association with "commercialism" (though they still like those gate receipts) and they shudder at the thought of betting on basketball games. . . . Once they're able to build the big field houses many of them are planning, the colleges may decide that the only game they'll play with the big arenas is hard-to-get. . . . On the other side, the promoters don't mind cashing in on the popularity of the college game and the chances are they'll be hiring the best college coaches and players to get the new league started next winter.

Former heavyweight champion Jess Willard won't be on hand for the Louis-Conn fight Wednesday. Returning from a long overseas tour, Willard was interested only in getting back home to Glendale, Calif. . . . with sports writers the other day, Joe Louis remarked he had seen only one baseball game this summer. He hadn't done so badly, because that was Bob Feller's no-hitter against the Yankees, Joe said. Then he quickly added: "I'd like to see Conn pitch a no-hitter Wednesday."

Harold Keller, brother of the Yankee slugger, Charley, is due to enter the Kings Point Merchant Marine academy next term to provide some batting support for Frank Shellenback, Jr., son of the Tigers' coach. The team captain is Lou Viau, whose dad played for the New Orleans in the Southern association. . . . Lt. Robert E. Simon, returning from Iceland reports that boxing is a "must" on the athletic program for Icelanders since they learned about the art of nose mashing from the American army.

Batavia Outslugs Lockport 21 to 13

Buffalo, N. Y., June 17 (AP)—Fourteen home-runs were clouted in pony league competition last night with the wild Batavia-Lockport slugfest producing seven four-baggers as Batavia outslugged the Cubs 21-13.

In a home-and-home series, Bradford defeated Olean twice 11-1 and 7-6; Wellsville trimmed Hornell 13-9, and league-leading Jamestown edged cellar-dwelling Hamilton 3-2.

Today's Talk

THE POWER OF TALK

If people thought longer, and talked shorter, this would be a much better world in which to live,
and it would be a much more constructive world. While perhaps a third of the people of the world are hungry, millions of them homeless,
and with millions in all lands disillusioned, there is talk of another world war!Why another war? Who is to fight it, and for what? Who is to pay for it? Let us all talk peace. Let us talk about constructive things. Let us concentrate on trying to make this a happy world, with less fear to face the born and unborn. Let us talk about the spiritual values, so essential to human brotherhood, and less of the material values that unbalance the world.The power of good talk cannot be measured. Good talk creates understanding, and it's misunderstanding that is at the root of all talk of war. National aspirations have no place in talk about international aspirations. The two are separate.
The former consists of self unity,
the latter of world-wide unity. If, as a nation, we cannot get along happily together, how are we to establish a world state that shall be just and peaceable?A false statement has faster legs than any true one. The former leaves nothing but evil behind.
That's what makes war so diabolical.
It leaves an atmosphere charged with hatreds that live on and on.
Its victories are charged with lies and misrepresentations.Is it any wonder that the messages and addresses of Lincoln keep living on, influencing all noble enterprises of nations? And take the brief talks of Jesus—Boswell's Johnson. The power of words, aptly spoken, and sincerely
felt, keeps growing—cumulative in influence, and undying.It was the "good talk" of Dr.
Johnson that has made up one of the greatest books in all literature—Boswell's Johnson. The power of
words, aptly spoken, and sincerely
felt, keeps growing—cumulative in influence, and undying.Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Law"

KEEP BUSY
If contented you would stay,
Keep busy!
If you'd drive dull care away,
Keep busy!
If you'd banish vain regret,
Cease to worry and to fret,
If your troubles you'd forget,
Keep busy!If you face a dismal day,
Keep busy!
If the skies above are gray,
Keep busy!
If you wake at morning sad,
Missing joys which once you had,
If you think your luck is bad,
Keep busy!If your fondest plans go wrong,
Keep busy!
If you fancy hours are long,
Keep busy!
If you're lonely, if you're blue,
Find some useful work to do,
Joy will soon be yours, if you

Stake And Prune Tomatoes
For Big Yield, Small SpaceWhen tomatoes are grown to a single stem, tied to a stake or similar support, the maximum crop can be harvested for the space occupied, though the yield for each plant is less than that of plants allowed to spread naturally on the ground.Staking and pruning plants to a single stem is therefore a good way to grow tomatoes in a small garden.
Single stem plants can be spaced a foot apart, and double stem plants 21 inches apart, while plants that lie on the ground require four feet each way.This applies to varieties of normal vine growth, which are the only kind that should be staked and pruned. So-called determinate varieties, of which the stems stop growing after they reach a certain length, while the plant devotes all its energies to ripening the fruit which has set, should never be pruned, and get no benefit from staking, but they may be planted as closely as 18 inches apart, and allowed to spread on the ground.They bear a good early crop, but over a shorter season than the older,
later varieties.Keeping tomato plants pruned
and tied to stakes or a fence needs constant attention. At the jointwhere each leaf grows on the main stem, a branch will develop, and this must be cut or pinched off before it is four inches long, otherwise its removal may weaken the plant. If allowed to grow, secondary branches will develop from it, and soon all effort to keep the plant within bounds will have to be abandoned. A few days' neglect of pruning may spoil the plants.

To grow a two-stem plant, select one branch coming from the main stem 10 inches above the surface, and allow that to grow. Both main stem and branch will have to be pruned regularly. Single stem plants can be supported by a heavy cord stretched from a suitable tall support, and anchored to the ground near the plant. The stem as it grows can be twisted about the cord.Two-stem plants may be tied with soft twine, strips of cloth, raffia or special ties made of wire imbedded in paper strips. Use a loose loop around the stem, to avoid constriction, or cutting.Tomatoes require full sun and regular watering. When the soil is allowed to dry out, with fruit set,

a black decay spot known as "blossom-end rot" may develop on the fruit.Watering during dry spells will prevent this. When fruit begins to mature, plant food worked into the soil around the plant, using a tablespoonful at a time, will help produce more and larger fruit.Tomato roots spread out near the surface and should never be disturbed. Never cultivate deep enough to touch them; a heavy mulch of straw or lawn clippings about each plant is better than cultivation, and helps keep the soil moist.

Things Of
The SoilThe widespread ravages caused by squash vine borers call for special emphasis on early and effective control measures. And while complete control is possible, gardeners should at this time of the year understand clearly that safety lies more in prevention measures than in reliance on insecticides. Knowing the life history of the squash borer is an important step in devising and practicing control.There is probably but one generation of this pest each year in this latitude. The winter is spent as a larva (grub) in a cocoon about 2 to 4 inches deep in the garden soil.
From this over-wintering form a moth appears in June or early July,
the exact time of emergence depending on weather conditions. The female moth lays her eggs on the under sides of the older leaves of squashes and other cucurbit plants, also on any vine stems that may be developing at that time.Winter squashes like the Hubbards are more likely to attract squash
vine borers than summer varieties, although no varieties are entirely immune to attacks.Eggs laid on the plants hatch in a few days into tiny white grubs (larvae) which begin almost at once to burrow into the main vine stems near the base. Later these grubs reach almost an inch in length and are easily identified by their white bodies and reddish heads. They feed outward toward the vine tips, causing the particular vines to wilt quite suddenly. The chief symptom of borer infestation before the fatal wilt stage is a small entrance hole near the basal part of the vine,
also "sawdust" cuttings at the entrance place.There are four main steps in control, all of which may be necessary to employ in years of heavy attacks:1. Inspect squash plants after the first vines appear, and with the first evidences of borers, locate the entrance places in the fleshy vines and kill the invader. This is done by slitting the vine on one side outward toward the tip from the entrance place, using a safety razor blade or other thin-bladed knife.
The culprit may be killed in the vine. Then cover the slit portion firmly with soil to induce the formation of additional roots. There are few merits to this operation after vines begin to wilt.2. Plant a few hills of Hubbard squashes near the regular planting, preferably a week to 10 days earlier.
These plants lure the first borers or the egg-laying moths and thereafter serve as "trap" plants. When they are heavily infested, pull and burn them.

3. After vines begin to run, by

They include gladiolus, dahlias, montbretia, tigridias, zephranthes,
isomenes, tuberoses, galtonias and tuberous-rooted begonias.Once a week go over the garden and stake all plants in need of supports. Try to do this job in such a way that the natural beauty of the plants will be retained.Thin Iris Plants
Iris should be divided promptly after flowering. Unless this is done every third year, the planting becomes too crowded, in which case disease spreads rapidly. Always replant the division with the top of the rhizome exposed.Peonies that have been attacked by botrytis blight, causing blackened buds that fail to open, must receive a weekly spraying of Bordeaux mixture. The buds also should be cut off and burned.Keep spraying roses once a week or every ten days to keep in check mildew, black spot and insect injuries.Pinch out the growing tips of hardy chrysanthemums if you desire bushy plants with plenty of blooms.Dig tobacco dust into the soil around boxwood to control aphids and improve the color of the fol-lage.Vegetables growing in sandy soil will receive more benefit from small applications of a complete plant food than from one large feeding.Plant perennial seeds before the hot weather arrives.

Plant sweet corn, beets, parsnips, the first of July in most cases, spray

the older leaves on both sides and the basal stems with nicotine sulfate in soapy water. Repeat every week until late July.4. Pull and burn all squash and other cucurbit refuse after the harvest season ends. Plow or otherwise stir the soil to a depth of 4 to 6 inches before winter or in early spring in order to expose and destroy the dormant larvae.And perhaps it is another indication that birds are needed as allies around the garden. Hence there should be nests and ample protection for birds against marauding cats. And if any questions arise in problems of this and other insect control, write the editor promptly
for needed advice and assistance.

Periodic Replanting
Helps Bearded IrisBearded iris are so easy to grow
that most gardeners have no difficulty in maintaining a good display year after year. However, to keep them at their best, dividing and replanting will be found necessary every three to four years unless each original rhizome had plenty of space to spread out and a good soil extending well beyond the original planting site.The best time for dividing and replanting is shortly after the blooming season, despite the fact that foliage will be in full vigor. By cutting the leaves back to about six or eight inches, a new balance
may be achieved. New Zealand spinach, broccoli, snap and lima beans, tomato, eggplant, pepper, melons,
squash and cucumbers.

HARRISBURG PUBLISHER DIES SUNDAY

Harrisburg, Pa., June 17 (AP)—Vance C. McCormick, publisher of two Harrisburg newspapers, an industrialist and former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, died yesterday. He would have been 74 years old Wednesday.

State and civic leaders joined in paying tribute to McCormick who succumbed after a short illness at his country estate.

A former Mayor of Harrisburg and Democratic candidate for the governorship of Pennsylvania in 1914, McCormick retired from politics in recent years to publish the Harrisburg Patriot and the Harrisburg Evening News. He was a member of the Associated Press.

He attracted national attention in 1916 when he led the fight for the re-election of Woodrow Wilson as president. He was chairman of the Democratic National committee at that time.

Keystone State Treasurer Ramsey S. Black, prominent in Pennsylvania and city Democratic circles, recalled that "as mayor of Harrisburg Mr. McCormick was the spearhead of the Civic Improvement program which changed Harrisburg from an old muddy town to a well ordered city."

William N. Hardy of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association said McCormick "contributed a great deal to journalism by printing a non-sensational newspaper which met the needs of his community."

A graduate of Yale university, he was named quarterback on the late Walter Camp's All-American team of 1892.

McCormick, survived by his widow, Gertrude, and a sister, Annie, held directorships in the Dauphin Deposit and Trust company, the Harrisburg Bridge company, the Elk River Coal and Lumber company and the Buffalo Creek and Gauley Railroad company.

YOUNG WOMEN'S

Within Ourselves" led by Miss Marie Lentz, Chambersburg, Miss Sara Mehring, Gettysburg, greeted the delegates and Miss Mary Houck, Hanover, introduced guests. A Bible study period was then conducted by Miss Jennie Streig, York.

Following a business session at which the group voted to send the new president to the United Church Missionary society conference as representative of the congress, the delegates were served tea by the Virginia Bowers Missionary society of St. James. A visit then was made to the Church of the Abiding Presence on the seminary campus.

Next Meeting at Jacobus. Miss Myrtle Wilkie, a missionary to Argentina, spoke on the customs of that country and the work of missions there. The afternoon session closed with devotions on the theme, "Peace Within Our Church," conducted by Miss Lentz.

Following a dinner at which Mrs. Robert Koons, York, a member of the executive committee presided, the evening sessions opened with devotions on the theme, "Peace Within Our World," conducted by the Rev. Dr. Ralph R. Gresh concluded the program.

Jacobus, York county, was selected as the site of the next congress to be held at a date to be selected by the executive committee.

JIGGER MORAN

AP Newsfeatures

by JOHN ROEBURT

Chapter 4

Jigger moved noiselessly along the polished marble floor of Police Headquarters. At the end of the long wide hall he entered an office.

Captain A'hearn sat formlessly at his desk. His eyes and nose were red and bulbous. His neck continued on an unbroken line with cheek, ending with an ugly circular welt at the base. He threw his voice like a pitchman.

"What do you want now, Jigger?"

"Close co-operation, Capple."

"Get out of here. I'm busy."

"You're telling me—me, your biographer and gentle critic. Why, I make a career of following your career."

"Are you starting on that key again?"

"Whatever do you mean, Capple?"

"I mean putting the heat on me."

An electric fan was doing A'hearn absolutely no good. He mopped his brow. "Haven't I helped you enough up to now? There must be someone else here at Headquarters who can needle. Why don't you lay off me?"

Jigger went to the water cooler. Answering your questions in the order you gave them, Capple. One: yes, you've been a reluctant pal. Two: my files would be a profound embarrassment to a few other headquarters prima donnas who couldn't say no to temptation. Three: it's got to be you this time. You're top man in the homicide division—and it's homicide I'm absorbed with at the moment."

"What do you want, Jigger?" The resonance was gone; A'hearn's voice was low and fretful.

"I'm doing a write-up on the murder of that doctor in Yorkville last week. Give me all the facts."

"You mean Dr. Otto Herz? There's not much to give."

"I'm starting from zero — so anything is something."

A'hearn swallowed a few times and harrumphed. "Well, last Friday night between the hours of seven and ten someone slugged the doctor with a heavy instrument and killed him. Whoever did it was extra peeved at the doctor and bashed his face in."

"Why do you say between the hours of seven and ten?"

"Autopsy."

"So much for the time. What kind of fellow was the doctor?"

A'hearn flipped through the fan-spread of papers on his desk. He replied, scanning typewritten data on an onion-skin. "He was a man in his fifties. Small local practice among Yorkville Germans. Old school practitioner—was practically retired for all the doctoring he did. Lived in his own two-story-and-basement brownstone dwelling. There's not much else."

"How does the Department figure the killing?"

"We don't. Not yet. It's still bludgeoned to death by unknown assailant or assailants with us."

"Whom have you questioned?"

"The wife. I mean widow. She can't tell us much. Says her husband had been almost inactive for the last two years."

"What kind of woman is she?"

"Sort of weird looking. Doesn't talk much. Dead-pan."

"Any clues?"

"Not a one. Can't even find the murder weapon."

"What do you think, A'hearn? You must have some idea, done some nosing around."

A'hearn shrugged. "Search me. I dunno. I haven't nosed much. I been giving most of my time to cleaning up Central Park muggers."

A'hearn doubled the force of his voice. "What are you taking notes for?"

"I told you I was doing a write-up."

A'hearn spat. "If you involve me, I'll blow you to kingdom come."

Jigger said, "Stop worrying. I told you this was on the up and up."

"I'd better be, Jigger. I can't afford any trouble."

"I know, Capple. Your pension application comes up next year."

A'hearn looked venomous. "You know too much."

Jigger said, "I want to know more about the butcher and the doctor."

"I've told you just about everything. Now beat it outa here."

"Just about—but not quite. Scratch your memory, Capple."

A'hearn skidded a finger across his forehead, flattening the sweatbeads. "What are you driving at, Jigger?"

"I'm referring to the erstwhile doctor's gambling proclivities."

"How did you know?"

"Never mind that. Give."

"The doctor bet on the numbers. But half the town does."

"That's what Little Joey claims."

A'hearn got up and sat down. "Are you working in with Little Joey?"

Jigger crossed himself piously. "Give me credit for better sense, Capple. Do you think I'd work in with Little Joey?"

"I don't know. The devil alone knows where you dig up your dirt from."

Jigger said, "Tst, tst! Shame on you for talking to me that way."

A'hearn rasped, "All right, so the doctor played the numbers."

"But you've been quizzing Joey. Why?"

"There was a story going round that the doctor hit big and Joey didn't pay off."

"Do you plan to arrest Joey?"

"What for?"

"Come. Come. The doctor hit for twelve G's. Isn't that enough motive for a killing, Capple?"

"Maybe. Anyhow, I've told you all I know. Now will you beat it?"

Jigger started as if to go out but turned and faced the Captain again. "Just one more thing, Capple."

"What?"

"I'm going in and out of the scene of the crime. I don't want any trouble from your boys."

A'hearn looked like a man whose worries were newly begun and said, "Don't make yourself too conspicuous."

"I never do, Capple. I'm the original shrinking violet."

A'hearn got up and strode a few paces into the center of the room.

"Jigger, how much have you got on me anyhow?"

Jigger got a good grip on the doorknob and gave it one experimental turn before answering.

"How much is on your conscience, A'hearn?"

"Talk straight."

"I am. Whatever is on your conscience, I've got it in black and

THE WRONG COP

Kansas City, (AP)—A woman approached a policeman in a bank here and asked him about a loan.

He explained she would have to talk to one of the bank officers. She replied she already had, and had been told to "talk to the cop." He was the only one she had seen around.

The bewildered policeman checked up. It developed she had been told to see George Kopp, a vice president of the bank.

DOCTOR, LAWYER

Springfield, Ill., (AP)—State's Attorney John W. Curren reported the telephone awakened him shortly after midnight.

"This is Mrs. ——" began the late caller. "I've got fallen arches, swollen ankles, varicose veins, diabetes and a bad heart."

Curren gulped.

"Someone threw a brick into my white."

"You're bluffing, Jigger."

Jigger held the door wide open ostentatiously.

"Don't gamble your pension on it, Capple."

DEMOCRATS TO RETAIN MICKLE

The Democratic State committee Saturday afternoon renamed J. Warren Mickle, of Bedford county, as its chairman.

Meeting in the court house here, the first meeting in its history to be held outside the commonwealth's capital, the committee also renamed Mrs. Ruth Grigg Horting as state vice chairman and Albert Gastrock, Harrisburg, was re-elected treasurer.

In resolutions passed at the session the Democrats invited "all liberal Pennsylvanians to join with the Democratic party in reestablishing liberal government in our state," pledged its support "to the efforts of Democratic National Administration to maintain price controls, and thereby avert disastrous inflation and inevitable depression," and castigated the Republican party in a two page document enumerating 11 fields in which the Democrats hold the Republican administration to have failed.

The resolutions aimed at Republicans included such charges as "It has permitted the school teachers of the state to be miserably underpaid, to such an extent that they are unable to maintain a standard of living necessary to their calling," and charged that "It has at all times served the interests of the privileged few at the expense of the farmer, wage earner and small businessman."

Chairman Mickle was authorized to appoint a platform committee

SEIZURE ENDS 5-DAY STRIKE

Pittsburgh, June 17 (AP)—Its railroad strike ended by government seizure, the Jones & Laughlin steel corporation's big Pittsburgh plant was back in operation today but officials said they do not expect to achieve normal production for another two days.

The five-day strike of 250 trainmen of the Monongahela connecting railroad, which serves the J. & L. mill, ended abruptly Friday night as soldiers arrived in trucks from the Carlisle, Pa., barracks "to furnish protection to workers whose services might be required."

The strikers, members of the brotherhood of railroad trainmen (Ind.) went back to work at 7 p.

which will report in the fall at a meeting at Harrisburg.

on orders of their union officials.

That made it possible for 750 other trainmen, not on strike, and 9,000 CIO-United steelworkers who refused to cross the railroads' picket lines, also to return to their jobs.

A company spokesman said 30,000 tons of iron production had been lost up to Friday.

Joseph Cahill of Cleveland, deputy president of the trainmen's brotherhood, said, in directing the workers to go back: "We will not strike against the government. We hope to negotiate a contract with
